

Considering a Farmer's Opinion

One August day in 2020, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un inspected the flood-hit Taechong-ri in Unpha County, North Hwanghae Province.

After acquainting himself with the flood damage on the spot, he kindly asked a farmer where he wanted new houses to be built.

All farmers were deeply moved to see him listening to a farmer's candid opinion and reiterating that neat and clean dwelling houses should be built in the flood-hit villages.

After a while, Comrade Kim Jong Un asked him again what kind of house farmers liked.

After listening to the farmer's answer, he said it would be necessary to make two draft designs, a one-block-one-family house and a one-block-two-families house, and make them examined by farmers of different workteams, not by officials.

Listening to his instruction, the officials felt his maternal affection for the people.

Thanks to his loving care for the people, the dwelling houses were built in the disaster-stricken villages in full reflection of the farmers' opinions.
