

Share Weal and Woe with People

One August day in 2020, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un inspected the typhoon-hit area in South Hwanghae Province.

After looking round for hours the damaged paddy and non-paddy fields, he said to the accompanying officials: The scale of damage caused by typhoon No. 8 is smaller than I expected. I worried a lot. Now I feel it is fortunate that the fields have been damaged to that extent. The agricultural sector should minimize reduction in yields by making a correct examination of crop damage and taking measures for improving their growth in cooperation with the agricultural science institutions.

The officials felt guilty for having failed to work faithfully as the servants of the people.

Kim Jong Un continued: It is one of top-priority tasks to be surely carried out by our Party to go deep among the people to share weal and woe with them, encourage and sincerely help them when they are in trouble and feel difficult. The Party Central Committee should always be with them when they are in happy times or bad.

And he took all measures to alleviate the misfortune and pain of the people in the disaster-stricken area.

The officials realized more clearly that it is the duty of the leading officials of the revolution to get closest to the people both in happy and hard time and share weal and woe with them.