

Height of Ideals and Confidence

The following happened one November day in 2024 when the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un inspected the sites of reconstruction of flood-hit areas in North Phyongan Province.

Looking round the flood-hit areas being transformed beyond recognition, he expressed great satisfaction over the fact that the young builders have built a modern rural residential district.

The officials were deeply moved as he spoke highly of the feats the young people had performed by shedding sweats of patriotism for the construction of structures.

Today's achievement is inconceivable separated from his trust in and love for the young builders as he had participated in the ceremony of dispatching the Paektusan Hero Youth Shock Brigade to the flood-hit areas to encourage them with his moving speech and visited the construction sites several times.

Looking around the officials, he said: I think the height of the structures is defined not merely by architectural engineering and mechanical calculation but by our ideals and confidence that we can surely build them. All the structures here are the crystallization of boundless loyalty and patriotism of our young people who are faithful to the Party.

This remark represented his ennobling intention that there would be nothing impossible in the world when we turn out as one with firm confidence and optimism.

The officials were convinced that his trust was the source of power for the young people to create miracles.
