

Estimating a Bench's Height

One July day in 2012, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un went round the Rungna People's Recreation Ground nearing completion.

After feasting his eyes on the Minigolf Course which looked like a fairytale world, he made his way to the circular bench set up under a tree.

In fact, the bench was made according to his instruction. Several months ago, he visited the construction site and said it would be advisable to plant tall trees around the Minigolf Course to offer cool shades and set up many benches there for people to have a rest.

Sitting on a bench with a smile on his face, Comrade Kim Jong Un had a talk with officials. He suddenly became silent and looked at the bench carefully.

Looking down at the ground and pressing down the surface of the bench, Comrade Kim Jong Un estimated something for a while before saying that the bench seemed a little low.

When an official sat closer to the bench, he considered his sitting posture and said it would be advisable to adjust its height a little higher.

As he always gave first consideration to promoting people's convenience, Comrade Kim Jong Un could pay close attention to a trifling issue.

Later, the height of all benches in the recreation ground was adjusted, and the officials keenly realized how they should work for the good of people.
