

By Relying on Our Own Strength and Technology

One November day in 2022, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un visited the medical bed branch of the Myohyangsan Medical Appliances Factory.

After going round the shop floor, he was led into a showroom which was filled with the branch's products.

He operated one medical bed after another to see whether they had any defects.

It took quite long, and he said, after giving a satisfactory look around, that the branch factory had ample conditions for producing various forms of medical beds by itself to meet the domestic demand for them.

Officials of the factory were deeply moved by the warm care of Kim Jong Un who was eager to ensure that superior medical facilities were manufactured in the country for the good of the people.

That day, he earnestly asked them to defend socialist public health system by relying on the strength and technology of the country.

His instruction represented the precious truth on self-reliance that they should rely on their own strength, wisdom and resourcefulness, rather than coveting others and depending on others' strength in the current drive for developing the medical appliances industry of the country.